Hyde, president, 1224 Claude street, Jacksonville—Four converts were baptized in Jacksonville last week, the ordinance was performed by Elder Thomas Jones in the St. Johns river. The little church being built in Madison is nearing completion. Elders Riggs and Mangum, who are laboring at this place, are doing a most excellent work.

Kentucky Conference—Elder Thos. E. Sechrist, president, box 354, Louisville—The general condition of the conference is excellent. The elders in their various fields of labor are being treated Duplin county, Elders N. M. Feik and C. C. Martinson were entertained by a minister, who seemed to have a sinister purpose in so doing. During the evening he bitterly arraigned them and the following morning ordered them from the house. Reports from the various counties where the elders are laboring, show the work to be progressing.

Elder Joseph F. Tracy, after having done a splendid work, has been released to return home.

Mississippi Conference—Elder D. William Stowell, president, No. 416 home, having filled a faithful mission.

Georgia Conference—Elder Lionell L. Myers, president, No. 44 Oak street, Macon—Elders A. A. Savage and W. C. Green had a pleasant experience lately. As they were entering the City of Tallahassee, they were accosted by a gentleman who asked if they were not Mormon elders, remarking that they appeared like it to him, although he had not seen any of them for over seven years. He took the elders to his home, where they were treated with much respect. President Myers has been touring the conference, visiting the elders and members. He reports the conference in excellent condition and the work progressing in a remarkable degree. Elders E. J. Lee and W. C. Green are having success in their labors. They were requested to hold a meeting in a schoolhouse, which they did gladly. After a good service a number of the people remained asking questions and desiring the elders to sing more of their songs, among whom were two ministers, who commented favorably on the talks of the elders.

Genealogical Society to Restore Old Social Hall

All communications for this department should be addressed to the secretary of the Genealogical Society, Joseph F. Smith, Jr., care of Historian's Office, Salt Lake City, Utah.

CHRISTMAS GREETING FROM

THE SOCIETY

To the saints, generally, and especially to the members of the Genealogical Society: We are pleased to extend our hearty greetings to you at this season of good fellowship and good will to all men, having in mind the birth of our Lord and Savior, and remembering with vividness the salvation which He lived and died to accomplish. We are well pleased that the labors of this society have taken a new impetus for good out, the poverty within, while they danced to the strains of Bro. Ballo's band, or waited with bated breath for Parthenia to "cleanse the cups," or for "Damon and Pythias" to forge one more link in the never broken chain of friendship? Ah, those were days when men loved truly and women served gladly. But their children have not yet forgotten those lessons of rich inheritance, and there is still one splendid living link between this generation of culture and luxury and those times of struggle and hardship; President Joseph F. Smith holds in his hands, not only the clasp of such pioneers as Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, George A. Smith and Daniel H. Wells, he also has known the pressure of those sacred fingers which Carthage stiffened into death, and which now hold within their glorified clasp the destinies of this later dispensation.

corner stone of all our temple work, the very best and most complete in the world. It would require many thousands of dollars to purchase the books even now in print on these topics; but if the Church provides a place to store such books, with a librarian to take care of them, surely the saints should be willing to do their individual share in securing the necessary books. It is for this purpose the sisters are laboring.

The Social hall was built under the direction of Brigham Young in 1852. Here were given those early theatricals, those pioneer parties when tickets cost $5, and bear steaks were served on the same menus with service-berries as part of the long and elaborate suppers. When the Salt Lake Theater was built in 1852, the hall ceased to serve as a theater, but it still continued in use for social parties

THE SOCIAL HALL.

In the year just passing. The saints are familiar with the revelations given to the Prophet Joseph Smith in regard to the salvation for the dead. But all may not be aware of the close relation which this society bears to that important subject. It is for this purpose that we have deemed it wise that a department has been opened in the Deseret News, that some proselyting and educational work may be thus disseminated throughout the Church. And the success of this department has more than justified our expectations.

The two great aims of our society are: To secure the largest genealogical library in the world, and to educate and assist the saints in the preparation of their genealogical records. The Prophet Joseph was emphatic in his instructions regarding clearness, accuracy and care in the matter of recording for temple purposes. And this skill is not acquired without experience and study. We have within our charter all needful opportunity to familiarize members with the various steps in this fascinating and important branch of our Church labors. Moreover, we have skilled and willing clerks at our headquarters in the Historian's office in this city, and invite the attention of the saints to this department of our society. Some of our more enthusiastic members have set themselves the task of bringing into our fold as many adult members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints as possible. May their efforts be crowned with success.

We extend our congratulations to the members, our invitation to the saints generally to join us in this movement, and our gratitude to God for the blessings which have attended our efforts.

THE SOCIAL HALL.

Who of the pioneers can ever forget the glories of those unique parties and early theaters which all centered and clustered under the roof of the old Social Hall? What fragrant memories of sincere delights linger about the walls of that building which has seen presidents and people, governors and civilians, old and young, mothers and babes, fathers and sons all gathered under the chandeliers of twinkling candles, or "swinging the ladies" on oil lamps, balancing and chaseling, bowing and prouetting, "swinging the ladies on the corner," and "next couple down the line," as those fearless and faithful ones forgot the Indians with-

sat. The Prophet Joseph Smith loved his child-nephew, and many times he blessed the brown-haired boy, who as man and leader still loves that prophet next to the Savior Himself. And therefore, it is not strange that this good and gracious man should, in connection with his council, consent to the plan of the auxiliary committee of the Genealogical Society to restore the old Social Hall to its pristine glory, and to foregather once more in those walls, sacred to proper and heaven-blessed recreation.

There are many places of amusement in this city, but none of a character to supply the old-fashioned demand for such a place as the Social Hall.

It is the desire of the auxiliary committee of the society to secure in time, a complete Genealogical library. And as a secondary design, to cement together with the fascinating chain of proper social diversion, those of the saints who are likewise engaged in the work of promoting the upbuilding of this cause. With this end in view a committee, of which Mrs. Edna L. Smith as chairman, has been laboring for some weeks to bring this matter to a successful issue. Mrs. Smith herself has long been a worker in temple labor, having been called when a mere girl to assist in the labors of the Endowment house. Here she carried her babies, serving in double capacity, and there she labored with never-flagging zeal till that house was closed and the Salt Lake temple dedicated. Since then, she has been a constant worker there. It is not surprising, therefore, that Mrs. Smith should enter into this later development of temple work with her whole soul. The auxiliary committee purpose having a series of brilliant social events during the coming winter which will equal, but scarcely surpass, the events and functions of those earlier days. There will be no doubt much in demand, but the committee is determined to retain, through care and effort, the old-time aroma of gentleness and stability which was so characteristic of older times.

The hall is to be in readiness for the opening of the New Year holidays, and great social events may be watched for confidently during the winter.

The means which may accrue from the use and rental of this building, will be set aside, after due expenses are taken therefrom, for the purchase of books for the genealogical library. The sisters are full of zeal to assist in making that library, which will be the
